KILL POP GUN BILLS AS THEY COME UP

MEASURES OF THAT KIND CAN'T PASS THEY SAY.

Senators Will Not Let them See Light — Senator Gorman Thinks the Chances for the Passage of Financial Relief Regulations Grows Better Each Day.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—[Special]—The senators say that no popgun bills can pass, and Senator Gorman thinks the chances are increasing for the passage of a financial relief measure at this session. The effort to prevent anarchists from coming to the United States will be resumed in the house of representatives next week if Mr. Boatner of Louisiana, in charge of the measure, secures from Speaker Crisp the time he expects. This measure provoked an exciting contest at the close of the last session, but its final passage was cut off by adjournment. At that time the government had received official notification from France that a large number of anarchists driven out of Europe were enroute to the United States. Secretaries Gresham and Carlisle were specially anxious to secure legislation in order to cut off the influx of dangerous characters. Senator Hill pushed the anti-anarchist bill through the senate, but it met opposition from Messrs. Warner of New York, Goldzier of Illinois and others in the house, and had to be abandoned for the time being. Mr. Boatner will now take up the contest where it was left off, and is hopeful of securing the passage of the exclusion bill before the holidays. As it has already passed the senate, favorable action by the house will conclude the legislation.

Representative Warner of New York says the necessity for the measure has evidently gone by. "There was no suggestion in Secretary Carlisle's report," said Mr. Warner, "as to the need of such a bill. There was much ado at the last session over anarchists about to land, and it was declared the country was in peril. But what has become of these anarchists? They must have been drowned en route. No one has heard of them. It is a singular fact that the men who urge this measure live in the interior, far from ports where anarchists might be feared. The New York newspapers, located at the place where anarchists would be most likely to arrive do not believe in the bill."

Mr. Warner's objection to the bill last session was that it did not define anarchists, but gave government officials a dangerous authority to call any one an anarchist and then deport him.

DISCUSSED IN THE HOUSE

Mr. Grow Argues Against the President's Banking Scheme.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—At the opening of the session of the house, yesterday committee on banking and currency was given leave to sit during the session. The house then went into committee of the whole to consider the President's message, and Mr. Wilson of West Virginia moved that the committee of the whole be discharged from the consideration of the message and that its various parts be referred to the standing committees having jurisdiction. Mr. Grow of Pennsylvania, made an address on the banking scheme promulgated in the President's message. He believed the present law should remain exactly as it is except that the banks should be allowed to deposit money as well as bonds for circulation and take out $100 on every $100 in money deposited, and circulation up to the par value of the bonds. State banks, he believed, should have the same rights of issue, with the same liability to the government, together with personal liability of the stockholders. The motion of Mr. Wilson was then agreed to. Mr. McRae, from the committee on public lands, called up the bill to protect forest reservation. Mr. Wells of Wisconsin opposed the bill in every feature. He declared that an association of timber thieves and land sharks was behind the measure. The pine land thieves of Michigan and Wisconsin, he said, had grown rich on their plunder, and had then bought seats both in this house and the other. Mr. McRae indignantly denied that there was any land ring or association behind this bill. After some further debate the morning hour expired, and the house proceeded with the discussion of the railroad pooling bill.

The opening speech for the bill was made by Franklin Bartlett of New York, one of the democratic majority of the committee. One of the strong arguments against the bill was made by William J. Bryan of Nebraska, who expressed the opinion that it was not the business of congress to legislate for the protection of the railroads. He cited the fact that under the anti-trust law it was a criminal offense for grocers and butchers to combine to raise prices and the same thing should be true of the railroads.

The argument Representative Gresham of Texas utilized to interrupt Mr. Bryan was the point, which is insisted on by the other members of the committee, to the effect that as the railroads are now making combinations secretly and defying the law the prohibition of pooling should be abolished.

He was answered by Mr. Bryan, who declared the remedy was to make the existing law better and not to take away the measure of protection which the people have now.

Representative Northway of Ohio showed that when congress in 1887 prohibited the making of pooling contracts it was not taking up a new question, for pools were then in existence and had been run in such a manner as to take the industries of the country by the throat. He was very much against the repeal of the bill.

Bourke Cockran followed for a few minutes to reinforce the arguments of his fellow Tammanyite, Mr. Bartlett. He made the strongest argument of the day in favor of repeal, claiming that the railroads could not now make money because of the competition. To refuse to repeal the bill, he said, was to force the railroads to consolidate.

The bill is to have the floor again to-day under the five minute rule, and Chairman Wise hopes to reach a vote by Tuesday. Many of the representatives say they will not vote for the bill in its present shape, and it is expected as a result of to-day's debate, when the short time allowed will bring many members to their feet, that the committee will suffer a defeat.

More Gold Withdrawn for Europe.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The cash balance in the treasury yesterday was $156,415, 337; net gold, $110,007,524. This increase in the gold was due to the deposit of $1,500,000 in the sub-treasury at San Francisco on account of bond purchase, a report of which reached here yesterday. Advice from New York, however, state that engagements for gold for export at the sub-treasury, as heretofore reported, amount to $2,250,000, which leaves the true amount of the net gold balance $107,857,562. With sterling exchange strong at a trifle higher figure than Thursday further exportations are looked for.

Old Soldiers Need Another Home.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The annual report of the board of managers of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers was to the house yesterday. It treats of the twenty-one state homes. The report shows the urgent necessity of increasing the resources of the homes, as they are already overcrowded. There are now 1,000,000 persons living who, if they become non-supportable, will be entitled to admission to the national home.

May Be Defeated.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—There are signs of a change coming over the temper of the house with reference to the Patterson bill to repeal the pooling clause of the interstate commerce law. The persistent rumors of a powerful lobby said to be working in the interests of the bill has caused the change, and its defeat is now freely predicted.

Chinese Treaty Ready.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The long delayed Chinese treaty has at last arrived in Washington. Yesterday Secretary Gresham and Mr. Yang Yu, the Chinese minister, exchanged the final ratifications and nothing now remains to be done but to promulgate the treaty and it is expected the proclamation will follow in a day or two.

AMERICA WILL AID.

We Are to Have a Representative on the Turkish Commission.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 8.—President Cleveland has sent a cable message here saying he has reconsidered his decision not to send an American delegate with the Turkish commission, appointed to inquire into the Armenian outrages. The President adds that he will allow the American legation here to nominate a delegate to accompany the porte's Armenian commission. The Turkish government is manifesting a great desire to satisfy the powers that the United States government was the first asked to send a delegate with the Armenian commission, but the United States declined. The earl of Kimberley, the British secretary of state for foreign affairs, was also requested to nominate a delegate and immediately assented.

Four Men Burned in a Fire.

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—Four persons were seriously burned and some damage was done by the explosion of an oil can in a flat at No. 111 Third avenue last evening. The four injured men, all of whom are peddlers, kept house in the flat in which the explosion occurred. Last evening at 5 o'clock, in attempting to pour kerosene from one can into another, one of the men spilled a quantity of oil upon the floor, which was uncarpeted. Without removing the can he applied a match to the saturated boards in the floor and an explosion resulted. Although serious, it is not thought the burns will prove fatal in any of the cases.

China Will Clutch at Any Straw.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 8.—Everywhere there is talk of peace, although it is certain that it will not be formulated on the conditions offered by China. The latter, however, will clutch at any straw to prevent the victorious entry of the Japanese into Pekin, except that she will not consent to the cession of Manchuria. A decisive movement on the part of the Japanese is expected in the north before the gulf of Pechili freezes.

Whitecap Outrage.

SPRINGFIELD, Ky., Dec. 8.—Whitecaps broke into the house of Thomas Edlington near here yesterday, and killed him in the presence of his wife and five children.

HOLIDAY INTEREST HELPS BUSINESS

PROSPECTS FOR TRADE IN JANUARY HOPEFUL.

So Says R. J. Dunn's Report Which Also States that the Revival Is But a Temporary One—Prices On All Goods Are Low—Failures Reported for the Week.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—R. G. Dunn & Co.'s Review says: It is difficult to detect any change in current business. Prospects for business after Jan. 1 are considered quite generally more hopeful. In some branches there are larger orders, and the west bound shipments of merchandise are a little larger, but the working force naturally diminishes near the end of the year and the holiday traffic brings just now a temporary activity which is not of much general significance. The meeting of congress and the announcement of the new currency plan and of various bills proposed have not affected the situation perceptibly. On the whole agricultural products are scarcely stronger and wages of labor do not advance, but there is reason to except the employment of a somewhat larger working force after the holidays. The receipts of wheat are larger than a year ago and the exports smaller, but foreign accounts, particularly as to the Argentine crop, have helped an advance of 1½ cents. Estimates of the winter wheat acreage indicate an increase of 1.9 per cent, with a condition somewhat better than last year. Although corn receipts have been much larger than a year ago and exports not one sixth as large the price has changed but little.

The iron industry seems to have distinctly brighter prospects at Chicago, where pig iron is firmer and bar in larger demand because of orders for freight cars. But Bessemer iron has sold at $10.25 at Pittsburg, steel rails have been reduced to $22 each, and wire rods and nails are weaker. Comparison of prices there and at the east shows the lowest average yet recorded.

The wool manufacture, judging from sales at the three chief markets since Sept. 1, has been doing 3 per cent more than last year, but 31 per cent less than in 1892, and the average of 104 qualities of wool quoted by Coates Bros. is 14.79 cents, the lowest ever known, 14 per cent lower than last year and 39 per cent lower than in 1892. Manufacturers are receiving more orders for spring and some have considerable demand for heavy goods, particularly for overcoatings, on account of a change in the fashion, and there is much confidence expressed that they will be able to continue production at about the present rate after Jan. 1.

The failures this week have been 385 in the United States, against 385 last year, and forty in Canada, against forty-two last year.

It Decides to Buy Two Papers.

NAPERVILLE, Dec. 8.—The United Evangelical conference considered yesterday the matter of establishing publishing interests. The meeting made provision for the purchase by the church of the plant of the Volksblatt Printing company of Chicago, Ill., and the Evangelical Publishing company of Harrisburg, Pa. There is little doubt that these plants will be acquired and the papers named be made the organs of the church. Among the laws ordained was one limiting the terms of pastors to four years. The same applies to the terms of presiding elders. A far-reaching piece of legislation was the adoption of provisions limiting the powers of annual and general conferences.

Say It Is to Please Russia.

VIENNA, Dec. 8.—Leading Austro-Hungarian papers attribute to Great Britain a desire to please Russia by agitating the Armenian affair. The papers declare that the massing of Russian troops on the Turkish frontier can only be done by agreement with Great Britain. It is added that the latter power ought to be careful in handling the eastern question. Additional reports of the outrages perpetrated by the Turkish troops continue to be sent in.

Calmants to Meet To-day.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Dec. 8.—Special Master Belford has issued notices to all interested in the Put-In-Bay cases, appointing to-day as a time to meet and listen to any suggestions or amendments. The report prepared by Mr. Belford is a voluminous affair. It sets forth the amount of all claims against the Put-In-Bay company. Many claims, aggregating nearly a quarter of a million, are allowed. This will end two years of tedious litigation.

Cole Younger May Be Released.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 8.—Information has been received here that Cole Younger, the notorious Missouri outlaw, who for over ten years has been an inmate of the Minnesota penitentiary at Stillwater, where he is serving a life sentence for complicity in the Northfield bank robbery, will be released Jan. 1. He has been very sick since his incarceration.

Richtstag Socialist Is Defeated.

BERLIN, Dec. 8.—The result of the election of secretaries of the reichstag was announced yesterday. The socialist candidate was defeated.

GET NO MORE LIGHT ON THE BOX MURDER

CHICAGO POLICE THINK THEY ARE RIGHT.

Confident that the men they have under arrest are the ones who killed A. D. Barnes and chopped his body up to hide it—the Ging killing.

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—There were no developments in the Barnes murder case this morning but the police are confident that they have the right men. It promises to be a gruesome tale, does this murder of A. D. Barnes, janitor of the Hiawatha flats, who was found in a packing case at Sixty-third street and South Park avenue early yesterday morning. The body was perfectly nude. The man had been killed by two murderous blows on the head and attempt had been made afterward to disjoint the body with an ax. Late at night the police arrested Edmund Jordan, John B. Jersey, Mrs. A. R. Winslade and Annie Mahoney. There is little doubt that the motive of the murder was jealousy. Barnes' record shows he had continual entanglements with women, and it is the belief of the police he was murdered as the result of a disagreement over a woman.

It was in the basement of the building where he was employed that Barnes was hacked to death, and it was from that basement his body was taken by the men who murdered him. The place, when the police inspected it yesterday, looked like a butcher's shambles. The police believe Jordan and Jersey were the actual murderers, and that the cause of the crime was their jealousy. A conviction, however, will not be easy, as the men strenuously deny their guilt and the evidence is purely circumstantial.

In love affairs the murdered man appears to have been rather fickle. He admitted to several men who knew him that he had been married four times and as often divorced. Aside from these matrimonial alliances there were others. No one, so far as the police have been able to find out, knows where any of his divorced wives are now living.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 8.—The report that one of the Hayward boys had made a full confession of the murder of Miss Ging seems to be entirely without foundation. A Pinkerton detective was seen at police headquarters yesterday and it is understood he is working on the case. Charley A. Blixt was arrested at 1 o'clock this morning on a warrant charging him with murder in the first degree. He is the third man the detectives have been looking for in connection with the Ging murder. He is the engineer at the Ozark flats, where the Haywards live. Ole Erickson, a hanger on at Ozark flats, was also arrested, charged, with murder. It is now believed all the principals and accessories to the crime are in jail.

Schaefers Plays His Game.

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—Schaefers outplayed Ives for the first time at Central Music Hall last night in their present ballroom billiard match for 3,600 points. It was the Wizard's night, and he did some excellent work. For a time he was ahead of Ives' record average of 62.15 made in New York, and ended the night's play only a small fraction from it. The score by innings:

Ives—30, 4, 11, 132, 164, 62, 30, 8, 37, 2, 3, 58, 0, 19, 34, 10—600.
Schaefers—0, 11, 8, 124, 217, 15, 40, 34, 91, 0, 82, 194, 0, 73, 99—944.

Averages—Ives, 37.12; Schaefers, 52—14.15.

High runs—Ives, 164; Schaefers, 217.

Grand totals—Ives, 3,000; Schaefers, 2,875.

Grand averages—Ives, 41.73; Schaefers, 32.93.

Didn't Take America Seriously.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—The correspondent of the Times at Shanghai telegraphs that Japan never treated the American offer of mediation seriously. China's direct appeal, the correspondent adds, was futile. Japan intends to attack Kin Choo, a town of Manchuria, eight miles from the north shore of the Gulf of Liangtung, avoiding an attack of Moukden.

Plot to Kill Moraes and Peixoto.

SAO PAULO, Dec. 8.—Two Italians and one Portuguese with bombs and other explosives in their possession have been arrested. The police believe the men were in a plot to kill both President Moraes and ex-President Peixoto.

May Build a New Bridge.

DAVENPORT, Iowa, Dec. 8.—Measurements have been completed here for a new bridge to be built upon the piers supporting the bridge at present spanning the Mississippi between Davenport and the government island at Rock Island.

Kossuth Makes a Promise.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—A Vienna dispatch says that at a banquet given in Buda Pesth by independent members of the Hungarian Diet to Franz Kossuth the latter promised to advance all his father's ideas except those regarding the dynasty.

Debs Decision Next Friday.

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—Next Friday, Dec. 14, Judge Alien, in the United States Circuit court, will render a decision in the Debs contempt case. The conspiracy cases will come before Judge Grosscup four days later.

Mistaken for a Deer.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Dec. 8.—News was received at Georgetown last night that twenty miles west of Georgetown, young Hardeman, son of Gen. Hardeman of Austin, with a Mr. Tibler, was hunting. They became separated and Mr. Tibler, mistaking Hardeman for a deer through the brush, fired and killed him instantly.

Not Fighting the Trust.

PEORIA, Ill., Dec. 8.—Sam Woolnei denies the report that the Woolnei and Nelson Morris of Chicago are forming the independent distilleries into a big company to fight the trust.

Medill Not a Candidate.

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—In an interview yesterday Joseph Medill confirmed the truth of the report to the effect that he would not be a candidate for United States senator before the republican caucus at Springfield this winter.

To Protect Italian Legation.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 8.—The Italian warship Umbria will land a force of sailors at Tien Tsin. This force will proceed to Pekin, where it will be employed in the protection of the Italian legation.

FOR MUNICIPAL REFORM.

Convention of the National League Opened at Minneapolis.

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 8.—The annual convention of the National Municipal league has opened here in the Unitarian church. Among the organizations represented are the City club, Government club, Citizens' Vigilance league and Citizen's Union, all of New York City; Advance club, Providence; Baltimore Reform league; Hartford City club, Good Government clubs of Troy and Yonkers, N. Y.; Board of Trade, Minneapolis; Municipal Reform league, Syracuse; Good Government club, Berkeley, Cal.; Municipal leagues of Philadelphia, Boston and Milwaukee; Library Hall association of Cambridge, Mass.; Citizens' Reform associations of Baltimore, Boston and Albany; Tax Payers' association of Baltimore; Men's Patriotic league of Pittsburgh, and the National Civil Service league.

LEAF RAISERS FAIL AS LEAF DEALERS

SPECULATION CONCERNING THE GROWERS' ASS'N.

Perhaps they hoped for too much but any rate they found that it was not so easy as it looked—Edgerton Reporter man's comments.

The announcement that the Rock County Tobacco Growers' Association will probably go out of business leads the Edgerton Reporter to speculate on the reasons thereof.

The association was organized about six years ago and included among its stockholders nearly 250 of the leading tobacco growers of the county. Among them also was a large percentage of the most progressive, intelligent and prosperous farmers, men who have been eminently successful in the management of their own affairs and farms, and yet this association has confessed its failure and is willing to retire without honor. It was an open secret that there has been dissension and jealousy within the ranks of the association nearly ever since the association was organized and yet with the ability and good sense contained within the organization, this of itself ought not to have caused its downfall. While the destruction by fire of the association warehouse at Janesville recently may have been the "last straw" which prompted the decision to go out of business it was not that alone, because a movement was already on foot looking to that end before the fire. Other causes for the failure must be looked for that would pertain to discuss.

Perhaps Hoped for Too Much.

Possibly the association hoped to do too much and therefore there must necessarily be a disappointment in what it accomplished. It will be remembered with what flourish of trumpets the management promised to do wonderful things. How it was going to save the middle-man's profit to the grower. How certain they were that the buyers were robbing the growers, and the association would remedy the evil. A good many unkind things were said about that time and promises made that would not look well in print now. The association has been given fair chance to make good these golden-tinted promises, and their efforts not being crowned with success, it is reasonable to conclude that it attempted impossible things. The association only did not make money for its stockholders and patrons, but it is quite generally conceded that nearly every grower who placed his tobacco for handling, storage and sale in its warehouses lost money by so doing. Not being able to demonstrate that a growers' association could benefit the farmer, what excuse was there left for its existence? And wonder is it that the stockholders voted to go out of business.

Speculators Must Be Pasted

The failure to make the Rock County Tobacco Growers' Association a success has thoroughly demonstrated to the farmers interested a number of facts they were not familiar with before. One is that speculating in tobacco is not always a safe investment. That the charges for handling, storage, insurance, interest, taxes and other incidental expenses in carrying leaf tobacco, aggregate surprising figures. Even with economical management these charges cut deeply into the proceeds of tobacco carried a year or so in a warehouse. Then there is an important item of shrinkage which the grower who sells from his farm seldom appreciates; and another chance from damage which the speculator or holder must assume, which late years have been no insignificant matter. In all these things the experience so dearly bought in the association has been a great educator to the tobacco growers of Rock county. Possibly the knowledge obtained has been worth all it has cost them but some of these facts will remain fresh in their minds for many years to come.

Statesmen Will Quarrel.

After all why a farmer or an association of farmers might not make a success of dealing in tobacco may not be exactly clear to some people. Some do and many others perhaps may. But the general business will hold good with dealing in tobacco as in other mercantile lines. The man who follows farming as a vocation is seldom by education or training fitted for a business calling. When ninety per cent of all business men fail sooner or later, it is no wonder the farmers make so poor a showing in that role. The greatest embarrassment which an association like that of the Rock County Tobacco Growers' has to contend with, is the jealousy and bickerings within its ranks. There is always too many "statesmen" included who think themselves better able to manage the affairs than the people who are then doing it. This in the opinion of the writer of the Reporter article is the great secret why enterprises started by farmers so often fail.

State and County Tax Notice.

To whom it may concern:—The tax rolls and warrant for the collection of state and county taxes for the city of Janesville, Wis., are now in my hands for collection and all persons interested are requested to make payment thereof at the office of the city treasurer, or the same will be collected at the cost and expense to the person liable for the payment of said taxes.

Jas. A. FATHERS, City Treasurer.

COLWELL NOTICES MANY CHANGES

Man Who Used to Live Here Back After Twenty-Two Years' Absence.

Thomas Colwell, formerly an old Rock county boy but now a resident of Minnesota, is in town. Mr. Colwell was a member of Company G, Eighth Wisconsin volunteers during the war, and has a number of army comrades who are delighted to see him.

"I was completely lost when I arrived yesterday," said he. "You see I have not visited my old home in twenty-two years, and there have been many changes. When I left, the passenger depot was up at the head of Milwaukee street, and the old Hyatt house ruins were still visible. Coming down the street I looked and wondered, for I hardly recognized any of the old landmarks. I walked on and wondered when I would strike the river, and I tell you I was astonished when I saw the buildings along the bridge. There was as many surprises to me over on Main street. Many of the old 'boys' are missing, too, and others have changed wonderfully. Once in a while I meet an old friend whom I can recognize."

DO IT IF YOU CAN IF YOU CAN'T, PAY

TROTTING TIME AND TIDE WAITS FOR NO HORSEMEN.

Janesville Men Made to Pay their Fond du Lac Entrance Money Despite the Fact that they Were Tied Up in a Railroad Strike at Minneapolis and Couldn't Get Away.

Do it if you can and if you can't, settle.

That is the theory that trotting associations work on. Horsemen are ruled with an iron hand and while it keeps the ones who might be crooked straight, it also hits a person now and then who wouldn't be crooked if they could.

H. D. McKinney and John C. Chadwick along with a lot of others had an experience of that kind last season. They were at Minneapolis during the railroad strike last season and their horses were entered at Fond du Lac. The railroad company could not guarantee the safety of the horses or that they would get to Fond du Lac on time so they didn't go. The Fond du Lac association protested them and the matter came before the board of appeals of the American Association at Chicago yesterday. The cases were as follows:

Case, 1, 111—H. D. McKinney, Janesville, Wis., br m Alice Director and b m Esperanza, vs Kite Park Fair Association, Fond du Lac, Wisconsin. Protested collection, $55.25.

Case, 1, 112—W. A. Paxton, Jr., and Al Fullager, b m Mary and ch The Conqueror, b m Phenom and g g Two Strike, vs Kite Park Fair Association, Fond du Lac, Wis. Protested collection, $10.00.

Case, 1, 113—James G. Boyd, Milwaukee, Wis.; and Fife, pacer, vs Kite Park Fair Association, Fond du Lac, Wis. Protested collection, $27.50.

Case, 1, 114—T. J. Dunbar, Menominee, Wis.; and ch Ben Lambert vs Kite Park Fair Association, Fond du Lac, Wis. Protested collection, $27.50.

They Must Settle.

The above cases, 1,111 to 1,120 inclusive, are all protested collections, made on account of suspensions ordered by the Kite Park Fair Association, Fond du Lac, Wis., for the non-payment of entrance money made at their meeting July 10-14, 1894. Protest is made on the ground that the protestants were unable to reach the meeting at Fond du Lac, Wis., on account of lack of transportation by reason of the railroad strike then in progress, and consequently were legally entitled to be relieved from completing their contracts. These cases were taken up separately, and the evidence offered considered separately; but the grounds of protest, the bulk of the evidence, the argument and the facts are practically identical in each case. The defense submits the original entries in each case, which are not denied, and rested their case on the ground that they were not responsible for the failure of the protestants to reach the meeting with the horses entered by them; that the entries were duly made at the proper time, that the meeting came off as advertised, that the purses were competed for and paid in full, and they had the right under the rules to suspend for non-payment of entrance.

It was held: That this board does not undertake to pass upon the legal question as to whether a riot or strike, such as would avoid legal liability, was in fact in existence at the time. The rules provided that nothing but death releases a nominator from liability for entrance fees contracted.

It is ordered that the protests be overruled and the money paid to defendant. It is further ordered that the Kite Park Fair Association and H. C. Moore, its secretary, be cited to appear at the meeting of the board in May, 1895, and show cause why they should not be penalized for accepting irregular entries.

Mother—Don't you think Mary is making wonderful progress in her singing?

Father—You bet she is! Why, when she first commenced, only the neighbors on each side of us complained; and now, from one end of the street to the other, they are kicking.—Puck.

Breakers Ahead!

Prudence, foresight, that might have saved many a good ship that has gone to pieces among the breakers, is a quality "conspicuous by its absence" among many classes of invalids, and among none more notably than persons troubled with inactivity of the kidneys and bladder. When these organs fall in duty grievous trouble is to be apprehended Bright's disease, diabetes, catarrh and stone in the bladder, are among the diseases which a disregard of early symptoms confirm and render fatal. That signally effective diuretic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, will—and let no one so troubled forget to employ the same in checking renal disease and check its further progress. Equally efficacious is the Bitters for constipation, liver complaint, malarial and rheumatic trouble and debility.

BANK OF ENGLAND PAPER.

Its Unique Qualities and Wonderful Water Marks.

The paper alone is remarkable in many ways—notably for its unique whiteness and the peculiar "feel" of crispness; while its combined thinness and transparency are guards against two once very popular modes of forgery—the washing out of the printing by means of turpentine, and erasure with the knife. The wire mark, or water mark, is another precaution against counterfeiting, and is produced on the paper while it is in a state of pulp. In the old manufacture of bank notes this water mark was caused by an enormous number of wires (over 2,000) stitched and sewed together; now it is engraved in a steel-faced die, which is afterward hardened, and is then applied as a punch to stamp the pattern out of plates of sheet brass. The shading of the letters of this water mark further increases the difficulty of imitation. The paper is made entirely from new white linen cuttings—never from anything that has been worn—and the toughness of it may be roughly estimated from the fact that a single bank note will, when unsized, support a weight of thirty-six pounds. The paper is produced in pieces large enough for two notes, each of which exactly measures five inches by eight inches, and weighs eighteen grains before it is sized, and so carefully are the notes prepared that even the number of dips into the pulp made by each workman is registered on a dial by machinery. Few people are aware that a Bank of England note is not of the same thickness all through. In point of fact the paper is thicker in the left-hand corner to enable it to retain a keener impression of the vignette there, and it is also considerably thicker in the dark shadows of the center letters and beneath the figures at the ends. Counterfeit notes are invariably of one thickness only throughout.

Under this permission the first temple of Pythian sisters was instituted at Warsaw, Ind., in 1888. The order has since then spread with gratifying rapidity and is now represented in nearly every state in the union. Mrs Hattie A. Robinson of Dayton is at present supreme chief of order, having been the first woman in Ohio to sign an application for a charter. At the organization of the grand temple in Sept., 1889, she was elected to the office of grand chief, and at the organization of the supreme temple at Indianapolis in October following she was elected to the office of

JACK NAPOLEON.

Murphy's Famous Bulldog Is Quite a Sporting Character.

An interesting spectator at many of the great bicycle meets nowadays is Jack Napoleon, the remarkably clever bulldog owned by William F. Murphy, the famous Brooklyn racing man. Jack wears a stovepipe hat as jauntily and airily as a Fifth avenue (New York) swell, and, as he is doubtless somewhat near-sighted, he is compelled to resort to the use of eye glasses when he examines the entries on the program or when he eagerly scans the riders as they come sprinting to the tape on the last lap. Jack is very fond of a "dry smoke," for whenever he walks along the street or attends a bicycle meet he invariably has a very English-looking briarwood pipe in his mouth. If the sport moves him to utter barks of joy as his owner wins a race, of growls of rage if Murphy isn't in it at the finish, the fact that he has a pipe in his mouth doesn't bother Jack Napoleon at all. He barks or growls, as the case may be, regardless of consequences and the pipe, but he never fails to cling to the pipe. When Jack was young and aggressive, he was considerable of a fighter, and is the hero of many a hard fought battle in the pit, but he has long since retired from the arena, and earns five good meals a day as mascot for his master and a well-known bicycle race team. His potency as mascot is in no way interfered with by the fact that he is just 13 years old. Jim Corbett once offered Murphy $500 for Jack, stovepipe hat, glasses and pipe, but the Brooklyn wheeler scored the offer, Jack's chum on the team is a monkey named McGinty, who sits on Jack's neck and rides the

SURROUNDED BY MYSTERY:

A Great Mistake.

A recent discovery is that headache, dizziness, dullness, confusion of the mind etc., are due to derangement of the nerve centers which supply the brain with nerve force; that indigestion, dyspepsia, neuralgia, wind in stomach, etc., arise from the derangement of the nerve centers supplying these organs with nerve fluid or force. This is likewise true of many diseases of the heart and lungs. The nerve system is like a telegraph system as will be seen by the accompanying diagram. The little white lines are the nerves which convey the nerve force from the nerve centers to every part of the body, just as the telephone wires conveyed along the telegraph wires to every station, large or small. Ordinary physicians fail to see this and this is the mistake instead of treating the nerve centers for the cause of the disorders arising therefrom they treat the part affected.

LIGHT WITHOUT HEAT.

Some Interesting Facts About Wonderful Fireflies.

Prof. Langley, in his experiments with fireflies, decided that the light does not depend on the vital principle of the insect. He found that the eggs became luminous on being shaken in a glass receptacle. Then he dried the eggs and kept them in that condition for a long time. On being moistened they shone. The dried eggs were powdered in a mortar, but they gave light on being wetted. The beetles themselves, twelve hours after being killed by electricity, were still luminous. So the professor infers that nothing more than a chemical combustion is concerned in the manufacture of this cheapest light. He thinks there is hope that we may be able to reproduce it some day. To make a light equal in brilliancy to that of this tropical insect we must produce a temperature of 2,000 degrees. The firefly's lamp creates no heat that may be detected by the most delicate instruments. Its energy is entirely expended in illumination. Nature, while offering object lessons in the art on every hand, laughs at man's efforts to imitate here in this field. There is a device known as Geissler's tube, by which a much greater light than that of the firefly is made without any heat, electric sparks being flashed through rarefied gases, but it is only a plaything of the laboratory. There are a good many kinds of fireflies in the world. Those that give an intermittent light are popularly distinguished as "lightning bugs." The glow worm of literature is the female of a European firefly. She never acquires wings. Her luminous substance is a soft, yellowish grease, extending in a thin layer along the inner sides of the abdomen. A few glow worms exist in the United States, but they are rare. The common fireflies of this country have wings, females as well as males. The larvae are stout bodied and grub like, found under stones and logs. They yield some light. Mosquitoes are the favorite prey of the Cuban fireflies. It is a pity that our own species have not the same taste. The "electric centipedes" are black crawlers with many legs, which have been likened to serpents' skeletons in miniature. They move in snake-like fashion, forward or backward, leaving a bright trail of light. However, they are most accustomed to appear in the daytime, when the illumination they afford is not visible.

THE MOSQUITO AT WORK.

How the Pestiferous Insect Performs Its Surgical Operations.

The little insect drops gently and painlessly down on the spot it has selected for its attack, and the descent of so light and airy a being is likely to leave the victim unconscious of its presence, unless he has actually seen it settle. Then the proboscis is pointed downward, and the tiny lips that form its tip pressed against the flesh. The bristles within the guttellelike sheath being then pressed together into one solid boring implement, their common tip is forced down on the flesh, and as they enter the wound the trough in which they were lying separates from them in the middle and becomes bent toward the insect's breast, the two little lips all the while holding on tight. The greater part of the length of the stilettos is then plunged into the victim's flesh, and if the blood is drawn up the fine interstices of the composite borer. The wound, though six instruments are concerned in making it, is extremely minute.

A Bernhardt Dinner Service. In a dinner service made in Limoges for Sarah Bernhardt, the designs of the dishes were as unique as the genius of the actress. The handle at the top of a soup tureen is a group of three ducklings with bills pointed to a common center, while a fourth reaches up his bill from the base. A vegetable dish is surmounted by a cock in the act of crowing, another is supported by two peacocks with dragging tails. Then there are snails, dragons and half impossible creatures of various shapes and degrees of heinous ugliness. Evidently the divine Sarah has a horror of the commonplace, always preferring to it the grotesque.

FRAUDS IN THE IRON RANGE.

Mining Companies and Wisconsin Counties Said to Be the Victims.

GREEN BAY, Wis., Dec. 8.—The Gazette yesterday published an important interview with a prominent contractor, who tells of stealings and robberies that, he says, were and are being perpetrated by many bosses and superintendents of mines in the iron country, particularly the Menominee range. He cites many instances where costly machinery was ordered for the mines and paid for by the owners of them, while the machinery and other supplies never left the factories. Thousands of dollars, he asserts, have thus been stolen from the mine owners and stockholders. This man further makes interesting disclosures as regard the manner in which the financial affairs of some of the counties in the iron region are being run. He tells of one gang of county officials in Florence county who were in the habit of issuing fictitious county orders and dividing the moneys among themselves. No names are published in the interview, but it is alleged the amount of money of which the iron mining companies on the range and Florence and Marinette counties have been defrauded will amount to over $200,000.

THE ENGLISH FORGET.

Some Important Comparisons They Sometimes Overlooked.

Our English cousins habitually forget that, as a matter of population, they are outnumbered two to one by the people of the great republic; and they are habitually ignorant, also, of the fact germane to this particular inquiry, that in respect not only of English poetry, but of all forms of modern art, and especially of continental art, the American market is very largely more important than the English. It is no exaggeration to say that where England possesses one really good modern French, Belgian, Dutch or German picture the United States now possesses twenty. In the matter of the modern English poets, beginning with Wordsworth, Coleridge, Shelley and Keats, and coming down to Browning, Swinburne and Tennyson, all the finest work of all these poets was understood admired and felt in America while the authors were more or less crying in the wilderness of British Philistia. This is especially true of the Brownings. Not long before his death and after his name had become a kind of religion with a still comparatively limited circle of British worshippers, Robert Browning said that not one of his books published in England had ever brought him in more than five hundred dollars.

Action of Snake Venom on the Blood.

At the last meeting of the Medical society of Victoria, Dr. J. W. Barrett gave a practical demonstration of the effects of injecting snake venom into the blood of living rabbits. His experiments confirmed beyond doubt the results obtained by Mr. Martin of Sydney, and stated by him in the Journal of Physiology last year, showing that rapid intravascular injection of a sufficient dose (0.000432 gramme per kilo) caused intravascular coagulation of the blood. The respiration ceased at death, but the heart continued to beat for some minutes. When the poison is injected slowly into the tissues instead of into the blood, in the same dose, the blood fails to clot in the body, and only very slowly, or not at all, when drawn. In these respects snake venom acts in exactly the same manner as nucleo-albumen, and it appears probable that the snake venom produces nucleo-albumen when injected, though from what source has yet to be determined. These results tend somewhat to confirm the original statement of Prof. Haldorff, that snake venom acts primarily as a blood poison.

Brooklyn Tabernacle Property Sold. BROOKLYN, N. Y., Dec. 8.—The Brooklyn Tabernacle property in Brooklyn was sold last night under foreclosure proceedings. There was only one bid, $10,000, it was made by Mr. Wills, over and above the amount due Russell Sage on the first mortgage. As the amount due Mr. Sage is $61,760 Mr. Wills gets the big plot for $73,000, which is $17,000 less than it cost the tabernacle.

Peace in Zion.
German papers report that the Jews of Jerusalem are all to be united into a single congregation. Hitherto they have been divided into three sections—the Sephardim, or Spanish Jews; the Ashkenasim, or German Jews, and the Kollelim, poor Israelites, supported by contributions from abroad. Factories are also to be erected to enable all to earn a livelihood. Baron Rothschild, who has again transferred large numbers of exiled Jews to the colony, is encouraging the study and exceptional use of the Hebrew language among his proteges.

MANY WOULD LIKE POSTOFFICE JOBS

FOURTEEN TAKE CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.

Thirteen Applied for Positions as Mail Carrier and Only One Wanted Office Work—Papers Go to Washington and No Result Announced Until They Are Returned.

Fourteen applicants for positions under the United States government have been put through the ordeal of a civil service examination this afternoon at the Lincoln school building. Thirteen are after appointments as carriers of United States mail in this city, and one only for a clerkship in the postoffice. The examining board consists of Miss M. L. Petersen, assistant postmaster; Al. Kemmett, mailing clerk, and W. J. Lennartz, mail carrier. The applicants were examined as to their knowledge of reading and writing, and also as to their familiarity with Janesville streets. Then each applicant was given a package of addressed envelopes, he being required to read the address on each. The examination is very thorough, and applicants who are anxious for appointment thinking the position itself is an easy one, is too often unable to pass the examination. The applicants examined this afternoon will not know of their standing until the examination papers are returned from Washington when the persons who have been successful will be announced.

HERBERT CONNER, the talented oil artist who has been here some time ago and painted portraits for Mayor John Thoroughgood, Judge R. Bennett, Mrs. W. T. Vankirk and others is now the staff artist on the St. Paul Call, the new morning paper. Mr. Conner was for many years the staff artist of the St. Paul Globe, but when that paper was sold at sheriff's sale, William P. Hall who was then the managing editor started the Call and Mr. Conner went with him.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. H. Macloon entertained the Fortnightly club in a pleasant manner last evening, Miss Emma J. Paulson being the leader. There were talks on the learned Italian women of the latter half of the fifteenth century and on Charlemagne, the reputed builder of Florence. The next meeting will be led by Miss M. Roberta Holmes, and will be held December 21.

BURGLAR GOT $175 BY A NIGHT'S WORK

GEORGE RICHARD'S HOUSE ROBBED LAST NIGHT.

Theives Broke a Pane of Glass In a Rear Window Enabling Them to Reach In and Throw the Bolt—Cash and Some Table Silver, the Plunder Secured.

Burglars got $175 and some silverware at the home of George Richards last night, and escaped without leaving a clue.

Mr. Richards lives south of the city in the town of Rock, about two miles from the Search place. He was in town yesterday, and did not get home until quite late. He went to bed about eleven o'clock, and as he was tired, he slept heavily. Half of his money was in a secretary in an adjoining room, and the balance he had brought home from town with him. When he awoke this morning he found that his trousers were not in the place where he had left them, but he did not suspect anything was wrong but thought his boy had moved them on a joke. Without discovering that he had been robbed he went out to do the chores, and while he was so engaged Mrs. Richards called him back, she having discovered the theft. The thieves had effected an entrance by breaking a pane of glass in rear window, after which they could reach in and unfasten the sash bolt. Mr. Richards at once hitched up and came to Janesville to tell the police, but no track of the thieves or goods have been found. Neither he or the family, he said, heard a noise in the night.

A tramp stole two chickens of Ball & Bates, the grocers, last night, and was trying to sell them for thirty cents, when Officer McGinley caught him. The chickens were returned to the owner, and the thief taken to jail.

MRS. DELIA KING GIVEN A DIVORCE

Beloit Woman Got a Bill Today—License Case Comes Monday.

Mrs. Delia King of Beloit went home happy this afternoon. Mr. King was the plaintiff in an action for divorce, the defendant, Michael King, not appearing. After listening to her testimony, that Michael deserted her two years ago, and the story being corroborated, the judge granted the divorce.

At noon, pending the arguments of the attorneys in the Owen Greene case, the jury were excused until Monday morning at 9 o'clock and Judge Bennett announced that he would not render a decision in special election case until Monday.

EYE LID TORN OUT BY A FALL.

Evansville Man Impaled On a Meat Hook In a Slaughter House.

Will Campbell of Madison narrowly escaped losing his left eye by falling from a step ladder at the slaughter house. A meat hook caught in the lower lid of the eye tearing it out causing a painful wound, but it is thought that the eye is not seriously injured.

Our Hobby.

Almost every individual and business house has a hobby. We have one and we have no hesitancy in telling you what it is. Ever since we have been in the drug business we have had a desire to have the best perfume made. We have tried different kinds but never succeeded in getting anything that filled the bill until we obtained Hudnut's, and now we can safely say to you that there is not a house in the city can sell you anything near so good for less than $1.50 an ounce, an imported perfume, while Hudnut's is only 50 cents an ounce.

An 88 Suit Sale.

Our sale of boys jersey suits, which has just closed was a great success. Hundreds came and carried away the suits and were highly pleased, as they never before had known such values.

Next Wednesday and Thursday we will have a men's suit sale. All our $10, $12, $15, and $18 fine worsted, tweed, cheviot and Wisconsin cassimere suits will be placed on one table, and will go at the uniform price of $8.

There are one hundred suits in all, four or five of each style, and they range in size from 34 to 42. These will be great bargains, and we could not sell for $8 each had we not bought at bankrupt prices for 56 cents on the dollar.

Remember, the sale will last but two days, Wednesday and Thursday, so come on those days.

FRANK H. BAACK,

Warm Hearts.
There are hearts in this world so warm a d true.

And sometimes we meet them, I do, don't you? How different the love, from a heart like that than from cold ones, that tire you even with a chat.

No sympathy, no patience, no kindness or love.

They seem dead to the world and heaven above. Of course they have feeling, and are good at heart.

But they miss half of life, and the very best part.

How will we know when true love is shown, When the hand of a dear one we take in our own;

And feel the tight clasp, see the glance of the eye,

The trembling lip as we bid them good bye.

These are all signs that cannot be feigned; They are outbursts of feeling the heart contained.

And we know, without fear, that to us they are true;

We wish there were more instead of so few.

TO EXCLUDE OUTSIDE LAWYERS. University Law Students Want Something Done by the Legislature.

The law students of the state university are agitating the question of having a bill drafted regulating the practice of law in Wisconsin and making an effort to have it passed by the legislature. Minnesota has a law of this nature aimed at young lawyers who are educated outside the state. The law there provides that all admitted to the bar must either be graduates of the law school of its university or must read in some law office in the state for six months and then pass an examination by the state board. No recognition whatever is taken of diplomas received from schools without the state. There is a provision in the act permitting lawyers who have practiced elsewhere five years to practice providing they furnish satisfactory evidence that they have been actively engaged in their profession during the five years. This law puts many Wisconsin lawyers who have business in Minnesota to great inconvenience, while on the other hand Minnesota lawyers are permitted to practice before the courts of Wisconsin without restrictions.

Four law students now attending the university in this city will leave at the close of this term and complete their course at Minnesota's school because they want to locate in that state and do not desire to submit to the regulation governing the admission of foreign attorneys. The state bar of Wisconsin will be asked to assist in procuring the passage of the statute.

MAN WHO POSED AS THE SAVIOR

AND NOW HE IS BEING SEVERELY CONDEMNED.

New London, Ohio, Has Recently Been Startled by the Work of an Extraordinary Crank—The Masterman Picture.

HE GOOD, BAD and indifferent people of New London, Ohio, are alike greatly exercised over a display of a series of "Christ's Head" photographs just made by Photographer H. W. Minns of that city, for which a somewhat eccentric school teacher named Elmer Ellsworth Masterman posed. Some of the more sensitive and piously inclined declare themselves as inexplicably shocked that any human being, especially one of their own neighbors, should have posed for so sacred a subject. Others defend the photographer and his model on the ground of art and artistic effect.

Masterman, the subject, has a striking personality. He is tall, spare, angular, and awkward in his movements. His long, red, shaggy, flowing hair and red, unkempt whiskers, beard and mustache give him a leonine appearance. He is 32 years old, single, and lives upon his father's farm on the outskirts of New London. His father is a German and his mother an Ohioan. His brother is cashier of the Gibsonburg bank. During the World's Fair

Masterman had charge of the water fowl exhibit and contracted a severe cold. By the advice of his physician, he let his short hair and beard grow in order to avoid pulmonary troubles.

"Had you any scruples or compunction in posing for so sacred a subject as the Savior?" Masterman was asked.

"No. Why should I? What is the difference between posing for a photograph and posing for a painting? The paintings of the great masters are looked upon with admiration and pleasure, and no questions are asked as to who posed. Why should I be so criticised and persecuted because I chose to pose as Christ in the pictures which have raised this storm? I felt perfectly free in doing so, and care nothing for the criticisms of men. I feel that if the act was sacrilegious Christ and the Almighty would not have led me to such success. I was urged by Protestants and Catholics to pose for the subject, but the first suggestion came from a Jew. If it was such an awful thing to do, I think that the Almighty would have prevented it."

Mr. Minns was asked if, in the face of the sharp criticism to which he had been subjected, he desired to make a statement defending himself. Said he:

"The production of the Christ heads by photography was suggested to me by a three-quarter length picture of Mr. Masterman, in which I posed him for Cataline as he replied to the sentence of banishment from Rome. The result to me, more correctly represented how Christ might have looked as he declared: 'Ye have made it a den of thieves.' This picture I showed to J. F. Ryer of Cleveland, who published 'Deacon Jones's Experience.' Calling his operator, he said: 'If we had this subject down here, we would pretty near make a Christ out of him.' That determined the matter and I am quite well pleased with the result. The pictures have been highly commended by the faculty of instructors at the Teachers' Institute. Rev. E. W. Cook of the Baptist church, a writer for several periodicals, has decided to write an article describing the photograph as a picture of sympathy and soul."

DIVORCED THE WRONG WOMAN. A Lawyer's Mistake Places a Couple in a Difficult Position.

A good story is now being told at the expense of a well-known Louisville lawyer. It runs thus: Two women applied to the lawyer on the same day. One wanted to be made a femme sole, the other wanted a divorce. By some hocus-pocus sort of a change the names of the women were mixed, and the woman who wanted to be empowered to act as a single woman was granted a divorce, and vice versa. It happened that the husband of the woman who wanted to be made a femme sole was a drummer, and, in reading the paper from Louisville while he was in Texas, he saw where his wife had been granted a divorce. She knew nothing of the matter until her husband wrote home and wanted to know what was the matter, and what he had done that she had got a divorce. He said he had transferred all his property to her and did not know how to account for her strange actions. Then she consulted her lawyer, and the apparent mystery was made plain. She only wanted to be made a femme sole, whereas she had been divorced. Rumor has it that the husband has returned from Texas and fully understands the circumstances in the case, but is afraid to visit his own house until he and his wife are remarried or the judgment of the court is set aside.

FASHIONABLE ATTIRE.

Many Devices Employed to Induce Women to Give Up Plain Skirts.

Some of the new skirts are very wide. Roughly speaking, they measure about seven yards round the hem, but the cutting is so exquisite that they sit beautifully and look no wider when on than an ordinary 4½ yard skirt. They cling quite closely round the hips and have curves at the end of each seam to get in the fullness.

—Chicago Tribune.

CHILDREN'S FASHIONS.

without trace of clumsiness. Indeed the cutting is a work of art, in its way, and inexplicable to any but the closely observant of such matters. No doubt the uninformed will wonder why such trouble should be taken to get in a lot of material and then to hide the fact that it is there, but that is just wherein the fashionable secret consists. These skirts are beautifully hung, graceful and are very full without obscuring the fact of their fullness on any but the appreciative observer.

Many of the new skirt trimmings are highly eccentric and prove that every possible device is being tried to induce women to abandon plain skirts and adopt those that are draped and trimmed. The double skirt is now rarely seen, but a miniature edition of it takes the form of a full, all round basque, which, when on, appears to be a portion of the bodice. A black satin waistband finishes this at the top, whether the gown be black or colored, and the addition of such a basque renders a dress well suited to wearing in the streets on warm and sunny afternoons. The skirt of the season is sometimes of a most astonishing shape when spread out upon a flat surface, but when it is worn its peculiarities of cut are invisible, only the fashionable effect being evident.

The first figure in the accompanying sketch wears a brown velvetine frock made with a plain, full skirt and round bodice gathered at the waist. The white satin ribbon belt ties with long ends behind. The gigot sleeves are plain, and a wide lace collar covers the shoulders. The second figure has a coat of ruby plush mounted in large plaited on yoke. Revers display a vest of astrakhan. A double ripple collar covers the shoulders, and the sleeves are made in bishop's shape.

EVENING GOWNS.

Lovely Brocades and Black Grenadine, Embroidered in Colors, Are In Vogue.

It may be consoling to girls inclined to plumpness to know that very small waists are not in favor. A recent article from the pen of an eminent authority on the subject says it is not the proper thing to lace or even to have the appearance of lacing. No waist should be smaller than 24 inches. The proper measurement for the chest of a girl whose waist is that size is 38 inches. Thus it will be seen that the modern beauty must be solid and nearly approach the proportions of the heroic age. The present age is an athletic one, and as long as the young women continue their healthy exercises—lawn tennis, croquet, rowing, riding, bicycling, fencing and vaulting, jumping and turning in the gymnasiums—bright eyes, good complexions and firm, well knit and muscular figures will be found.

Evening dress is going to be very pretty this season. Lovely brocades in well modulated compositions of bright tones and tints are prepared for the winter campaign. Bodices in a soft color covered with black chiffon are still in the highest vogue. Bright satin neckbands are to be worn with evening dress, the bow being worn in front now, instead of at the back. Some of these collarettes have a bow both back and front. They give a pretty finish to the neck.

Black grenadine embroidered in colors is among the new materials for evening wear this season, while wide plaited chiffon or crêpe may be bought by the yard in all the evening shades.

An illustration is given of an evening toilet of white brocade, with Louis Quinze bouquet and strawberry velvet. The round skirt is trimmed on each side by coquilles of velvet lined with white silk and ending under a bow of ribbon velvet. The round bodice is slightly gathered at the waist under a velvet belt. A velvet bertha surrounds the shoulders, ornamented with choux of white ribbon. The short bouffant sleeves are of brocade.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Return of the Chemise.

The chemise has returned to stay, for this season at least, and it is to be hoped forever. Batiste and wash silks are the favorite materials for this becoming undergarment. Many are long and trimmed around the bottom to answer the purpose of a short skirt. There are dozens of excellent shaped necks—pompadour, with little fullness, for plump figures, and others cut round with plenty of gathers for spare ones.

Understood His Business.

Fair Sufferer—Doctor, are corns always caused by wearing shoes that are too tight?

Chiropodist—Not always, ma'am. That's what causes 'em in the case of your friend, Miss Biggins, across the way. Her feet were made to fit a No. 6 shoe, but she's a-trying to crowd 'em into a No. 4. Yours, ma'am, is produced by wearing too large a shoe, which makes wrinkles in the leather and causes friction agin the cuticle.—Chicago Tribune.

The Lesson He Drew.

"It's no use," she said dejectedly, "I've simply got to suffer."

"What's the matter?"

"Young Mr. Slogo called last night. I endured his society patiently until in self-defense I was forced to remark: 'Really, Mr. Slogo, I'm very much afraid it's getting late.'"

"And what did he do then?"

"He simply smiled and said that women are naturally timid."—Washington Star.

QUEEN AND PAUPER.

I have gold a-plenty, and rich adorning.
I order all things to my wish, it seems.
And yet I am but a creature mourning
A broken life and vanished dreams.

I have friends and lovers and kindred tender.
They watch and ward each hair of my head.
And yet in the midst of all my splendor
I envy a woman who asks for bread.

That beggar who walks with her rosy baby
Clasped tight in arms that are worn and lean—
She covets my comfort and wealth, it may be.
Yet I am a pauper, and she is a queen.

Ruth Hall in Good Housekeeping.

THE QUICKSAND.

Stoner had been a Texan ranger and could hold his own extremely well in that rough frontier country. He had carried off a pretty Spanish wife from the Chihuahua region years before, had brought her to the rocky Californian coast and had purchased a settler's claim and an old adobe house built by a Spanish hidalgo half a century ago.

Here he farmed, raised cattle on the unused government lands and kept a sort of rude hotel, for several mountain trails joined at that point the broad highway which led from the county seat, 20 miles south, to the northern settlements in the pines. He had five daughters, too, the youngest, Theresa, known as Tessa, a girl of 17. That added to the attraction, and almost every night the dark eyed, half Spanish girls sang and danced, and old Stoner managed to hear all the news that was afloat, and somehow most of the loose coin of the region ultimately found its way into his pockets. He was a deep one, that same Ephraim Stoner, quiet, sly and patient, secret in his methods and deadly in his blow.

Stoner's wife and his four elder daughters were uneducated and in complete subjection to his will, but Tessa had more brains and energy than all the others put together and quite as much beauty, so that the old Texan ranger took a certain pride in her and had even allowed her to attend a distant school for two years.

This midnight, when, as I have said, the story begins, a person of a prying disposition might have discovered several interesting performances in progress around the Stoner adobe. On the north side of the house, quite in the shadow, Tessa was leaning from her window, conversing in low tones with a blond, fair haired and sturdy young man on horseback.

"Tom, you do not know my father. He is not the careless, warm hearted man you suppose. I must admire his ability, but that is all. I warn you, Tom, there never was a more dangerous man. He may be where he hears every word you say, but if he is he will not speak to you or to me about it, but if he knew that you cared for me he would be your enemy. He has other plans for me. He wants me to marry for money."

Tom Warren had once been the school-teacher in the mountain district, miles away, where Tessa had been one of his pupils. Throw upon his own resources from his childhood, he had developed a strong, earnest character and was already so popular in the county that he had just been elected sheriff, although the youngest man on the ticket.

While Tessa and her lover were talking a scene of a far different nature was being enacted on the south side of the old adobe, which overlooked a deep ravine and a camp of five or six men in a field below. For several years these men had spent their summers there, ostensibly hunting, fishing and exploring the country with their dogs and guns. Every one knew them, and most persons liked them. Tessa did not.

Stoner, though it was midnight, sat in the moonlight on an old rawhide chair, outside the door, smoking his pipe and meditating—a tough, sinewy, grizzled night owl of a man.

"That infernal knuckle head at the camp ought to have reported before now," he thought to himself as he smoked.

A man came out of the brush and spoke deferentially:

"Capt'n, good evenin'!"

"You're late."

"Dick was shot."

"Well?"

"Just as the driver threw off the box. Shot by a passenger in the neck and shoulder."

"He mustn't stay here to get us into trouble. Take a boat and carry him to the point and leave him in the cave there."

"Yes, capt'n."

"How much was aboard?"

"About $2,000 for the Josephine miners."

"Send it over the cliff before morning, and I'll divide it up soon, but you be extra careful. That new sheriff is a smart one."

"All right, capt'n," and the man went back to the camp.

A moment later, just as Stoner was going back into the house, there was the slow thud of a horse's hoofs, and Tom Warren, the young sheriff, rode down the trail, around the corner of the old adobe building into the main country road that lay to the west. He had at last yielded to Tessa's entreaties to "go, go, this minute, Tom."

Impassable as Stoner was, he felt a little startled by the sight.

"Where in the devil did you come from, sheriff? Anything up in this part of the country?"

"Oh, no, not a particle. I've been visiting my old school in the mountains and took the short trail home, down Cayucos."

This was plausible enough, for there was a blind trail that entered the canyon just east of the angle of the house. Stoner felt a little relieved.

"Won't you put up and stay with us all night?"

"No, Mr. Stoner, I must go down to Kestral to see friends there. It's only an hour's ride."

"That settles it," thought Stoner. "Plenty of stout fellows to use as sheriff's deputies there. He has probably stumbled on traces and is going for York Journal."

help." He sat and smoked and slipped his hand back under his coat. "Easy to shoot the fellow," he said to himself.

"Well, goodby, Stoner," said Warren suddenly. "I suppose the beach road is as good as ever?"

"Perfectly safe, only when you cross Toro creek keep on the sand bar. It's as hard as iron. I crossed there today."

"Thank you. Adios!"

Simple, smiling speech, these words of Stoner's, and yet they were intended, to send Warren to his death more surely and safely than by bullet of pistol or pellet of poison.

Stoner took an extra swig of brandy and went to his rest. Warren rode down the rugged hill to the bottom of the ravine, then turned seaward, and at last the wide gulch opened broadly to the shore of the Pacific.

The cliffs were from 50 to 300 feet high and full of waveworn caves. Warren drew rein on the beach, and for fully ten minutes watched the ocean sway and rise. His thoughts throbbed with dreams of Tessa. He would take her away from her narrow and hurtful surroundings. He would lift her into happier and better circumstances. He would force Stoner's consent, marry her and make her happy.

He rode rapidly south, and in half an hour the mouth of the Toro appeared, in the midst of sand dunes, breakers rolling in and the steady river flowing out. Here was the long sand bar, ten feet wide and stretching across hardly an inch higher than the watery surface.

Warren was beginning to have some suspicions of Stoner, but not such as to lead him to doubt the simple directions he had received. The sand bar looked safe, but within a few days the sea, as Stoner knew, had swept it mightily, torn out the long compacted bar and placed instead a quivering mass of quicksand, so treacherous that not even a light footed rabbit could cross without being swallowed up and dragged bodily down. Warren rode swiftly forward. He had crossed sand bars hundreds of times. Some horses would have been wiser, but the animal he rode had been bred in the valley.

The approach to the bar was hard for a few rods as he galloped on. Suddenly, in one heartbreaking, breathless descent, noiseless, but unutterably dreadful, Tom Warren's horse went down, down, and the soft, slimy sand came up to his mane. He shrieked out that a ghastly cry of appeal and agony that a desperate, dying horse will sometimes utter.

Tom knew the peril. He had thrown his feet from the stirrups and drawn them up at the first downward throb, but the sand began to grasp him also. He threw himself flat on his breast and rode himself loose from the poor animal, over whose back the mingled sand and water were running, as it rolled from side to side in ineffectual struggles to escape.

Tom spread himself out over as much surface as possible, but slowly, resistlessly, the mighty force drew him downward. The hard beach was only ten feet distant, but practically the chasm was impassable. He felt the horse sink out of sight. The sand gripped his own knees and arms, his thighs and shoulders. Two inches more, and the end by suffocation was inevitable. Up to this time he had not shouted. Only his horse's wild death scream had told of the tragedy. What was the use? Who would be passing along that lonely road? Then he thought of Tessa and of life. He raised his voice in a clear, strong shout for help, again and again repeated.

Far off along the deep ravine came a cry in response and a horse's hurrying feet, and hope awoke in his heart. The margin of life was five minutes now—not longer. Faster, faster, oh, fearless rider!

"Tom, where are you?"

"Here, Tessa. Don't come too near."

But the mountain girl knew the danger. Creeping down stairs for a drink of water, she had heard her father's words to Warren, had thrown a shawl about her shoulders and run to the pasture. Then she caught her pet horse, sprang upon his unsaddled back, seized a riata as she passed the stable and galloped at the utmost speed down the ravine, hoping against hope, for many minutes had necessarily elapsed since Warren started.

She sprang to the ground and tossed the rawhide rope to the one arm he held above the sand. She folded her shawl and put it over her horse's shoulders and tied the riata around like a collar. Then she led him slowly away from the quicksands, and Warren thought his arm would break, but slowly, reluctantly, painfully, the sand gave up its prey.

"Your father told me to take this road, Tessa," said the young sheriff.

"Yes, I know that, and I heard one of the men tell him today that the bar was swept out."

There was a long silence between them.

"Tessa, go with me to San Luis," said Warren, "and let us be married."

And Tessa went.

Old Stoner heard the news a few days later. Within an hour he had "retired from business." The camp was broken up, the hunters disappeared, mysterious lights flashed at intervals all night from the points of the cliff, and the next day old Stoner himself disappeared, leaving his family, the ranch and the live stock.

It was said that he made the best of his way to Mexico, and finally to South America. The world is large as yet, and men who have money can ramble over a good deal of it without finding a past they wish to escape from. But Tessa lives in her San Luis Obispo cottage, with orange trees over it, and La Marque roses on the porch, and she thinks herself the happiest woman in California.—Belford's Magazine.

QUEENS IN 1831.

Various Modes of Hair-Dressing and Embellishing Revealed by Their Portraits.
All women will be interested in the accompanying reproduction of a curious old engraving, published in 1831, half a dozen years before the accession of Queen Victoria to the throne, in which are given portraits of Queen Adelaide and the various European queens who were her contemporaries—namely: Marie Amelie, Queen of France; Caroline Augusta, Empress of Austria; Louise Marie Therese, Queen of Belgium; Alexandria Feodorowna, nee Frederica, daughter of Frederic William III. of Prussia, Empress of Russia; Maria Christina, Queen of Naples;

1. The Queen of England. 2. The Queen of France. 3. The Queen of Belgium. 4. The Queen of Austria. 5. The Empress of Russia. 6. The Queen of Naples. 7. The Queen of Portugal. 8. The Queen of Prussia. 9. The Queen of Spain.

ples: Donna Maria Gloria, Queen of Portugal; Louise the celebrated Queen of Prussia; and Maria Christina Queen of Spain. The curious modes of dressing the hair and embellishing it are in themselves an entertaining study for fashionable women of to-day.

John Chinaman's Reasoning.
A little time since, so the story goes, one of the Chinamen attending the Bromfield Street Methodist Episcopal Sunday school renounced his heathenism, embraced Christianity and was duly baptized by the pastor, Dr. Mansfield, according to Methodist usage. A little later John fell into the hands of some of the brethren of Dr. Gordon's flock, who proceeded at once to instruct him further in the new way. They told him that his so called baptism had been inadequate; that there was but one possible meaning to the word "baptize," and were congratulating themselves that they had made an impression, when John said: "Me see! So, so! Melican man fryee pletato! Melican man boilee pletato! Melican man baked pletato! Pletato cookee alle same."

TRIVIAL TOPICS.
"Are you going to run for office?" "Run for office? I should say not. I've got a walkover."
"How did Jones come to give up smoking?" "Smith couldn't afford to buy cigars any longer."
Young Chip—What causes so much sickness, father? Old Block—Too much talking about it, my son.
Uncle—Tell me frankly, Fred, what is the amount of your debts? Fred—Oh, my dear uncle, just as much as you please.
"Are you a well-digger?" asked the man who wanted some work done. "I can't say that Oi am," replied Mr. Dolan, leaning on his pick. "At present Oi have a touch av the rheumatism."
Mrs. Hicks—I ordered ten yards of dress goods here yesterday, to be sent; has it been cut yet? Floor-walker—No, indeed; the clerk said you hadn't been in yet to change your mind.
Hicks—It spoils a ball game for me to have to take my wife. Dix—How so? Hicks—When one of our men scores a home run she looks at me and says sweetly: "Now, isn't that too bad?"

She—Well, what did you think of the church festival? He—It reminded me of a prize fight more than—She—Heavens! people didn't come to blows, did they? He—No; but everybody talked all the time.

"How do you suppose Mrs. Lakeside will feel when she meets her three husbands in heaven?" "Oh, dear, that's all right. They were not the kind of men she'd ever run any chances of finding there."

Mrs. Suburb—Why don't you take little Johnny to the fair? He's crazy to see that balloon ascension and parachute jumper. Mr. Suburb—I can't afford it. "It won't cost over twenty-five cents to get him in." "No, but it will cost us about $10 for new umbrellas."

"I see by the paper," said Mrs. Corn-tassel, "that Senator Sorghum is comin' home soon to fix up 'is fences." "Is he?" rejoined her husband wearily. "Yes. That shows how the senator is in the world. Here you air lettin' your fences go to rack an' ruin, while a United States senator comes all the way from Washington ter slick up around his farm. There's 'n example fur ye as is an example."

"You horrid, mean, detestable, old thing," said a young woman in brown stepping up behind a young woman in blue, who was enjoying a solitary ice cream soda at a drug store counter. "You're a perfect pig." The young woman in blue turned an astonished face toward the speaker and the speaker was covered with confusion and blushes. "Oh," she exclaimed, "I beg your pardon! I thought you were a friend of mine." To which the young woman in blue replied amiably, "Of course; I knew you did from the way you spoke."
